Crises Reveal Our Character

What would we do if we were fired from our job and put in prison because our employer's wife told horrible lies about us? What would we do if we had run for our life because we helped defend a neighbor from an injustice? What would we do if we were offered something we greatly desired but knew was illegal and life-threatening to obtain? What would we do if suddenly we discovered that all that we had believed in the past was not true, and instead of serving God we were actually fighting Him? What would we do if we were offered a considerable amount of money to betray a friend? What would we do if we found out that the woman to whom we were engaged became pregnant before the wedding, and we knew it wasn't our child?

These are not hypothetical questions. They really happened, and the answers to these questions reveal the type of character each person possessed at the time the crisis occurred. We can probably identify each of the people in the above scenarios: Joseph (Jacob's son), Moses, Eve, Paul, Judas, and Joseph (and Mary). Some of them faced the crisis with faith and resolve and withstood the challenge. Others failed. But what these examples teach us is that when crises occur, our character will be revealed.

All of us have faced and will continue to face many challenges in our lives. They may be strong temptations; they may be difficult choices; they may be heart-breaking health issues. And many of our crises are not personally our own – they may involve our spouse, parents, children, family or friends. Still, they are heavy burdens.

As we reflect back on our lives, it's easy to see that there were countless crises that shaped, molded and revealed our character. There is not much we can do about them now except to determine that in the future we will learn from our mistakes and enhance our strengths. How we handle crises reveals who we really are. It also reveals how we have prepared for the inevitable challenges. We may not know exactly the kind of crises that may be coming in the future, but they will come. How we prepare today for them will determine how these crises affect us.

Our three basic optional responses to crises are: 1) Joseph was able to overcome the crisis with Potiphar's wife because he had already established his values, even as a teenager; 2) Moses overcame a poor decision by developing spiritually while in the wilderness; 3) Judas allowed his crisis to destroy him.
